The Master of Education Leadership (M.Ed.) - Career Pathways at Florida Coastal University is an advanced, industry-relevant program designed to develop visionary leaders for schools, colleges, and educational organizations. It blends research-driven knowledge with practical leadership applications to prepare students for today's dynamic and evolving education landscape.

Focused on strategic planning, policy implementation, instructional leadership, and organizational development, the Educational Leadership specialization equips students to manage institutions, inspire faculty, and drive innovation in academic environments. Graduates are prepared to lead in school administration, district leadership, curriculum development, and education policy-making with confidence and integrity.

Program Overview

The Master of Education - Leadership program is a 36-credit hour, fully online graduate degree that blends advanced educational theory with practical leadership strategies. The curriculum is designed to prepare educators and administrators to lead with vision, manage institutional change, and foster innovation across diverse learning environments.

Key focus areas include organizational leadership, policy analysis, curriculum design, data-driven decision-making, and the ethical dimensions of educational leadership. Students gain valuable exposure to real-world academic and administrative challenges through case studies, applied research projects, leadership simulations, and interactive coursework - all delivered through a flexible, student-centered online platform.
